Interest accrued,	19 50
	$615 05

Of the legacy of $1,000 of Mrs. West, $900 has been paid and the balance, $100, is due this year.

Some repairs are needed on library building and inside blinds added. This expense we propose to charge to the general account.

Prompted by a desire to promote the welfare of the library, Rev. George W. Ruland volunteered his services in procuring by subscription the gift of 10 large volumes of the History of Literature of all Nations. A notable addition and one most acceptable. The continued additions of books of the passing years contributes to the value, the interest and to the appreciation of all our library patrons.

The resignation of Mrs. Bryant as librarian after long and efficient service made it necessary to appoint a new one. We were fortunate in securing the services of Mrs. Jennie L. B. Craig. We are confident that the duties of a librarian will be rendered onward without impairment of efficiency and without increase of salary.

WILLARD BILL, JR.,
Trustee.

Having examined the financial account of the trustees of the public library of the town of Westmoreland, I find it correctly and properly vouched.

A. J. BUFFUM,
Auditor.

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

To the School Board of Westmoreland, N. H.

I have the pleasure of presenting to you, and through you to the citizens of the town, the sixth report of the superintendent of schools.

REVENUE.

All schools of New Hampshire receive revenue from three sources.

(1) School money required by law.—This is found by multiplying the apportioned ratio in the general state tax by 750. Thus Concord in a recent year paid $68.26 in every $1,000 of the general state levy. Hence Concord raised for school purposes $68.26 multiplied by 750 equals $51,195.

(2) Literary fund.—This source is not correctly named. It is really the annual income from taxes upon deposits and stocks in savings banks, loan and trust companies of persons who do not live in the state or whose residence is unknown. This revenue is distributed among the districts in direct proportion to the number of pupils five years of age and over who have attended school at least two weeks during the previous year.

(3) Dog tax.—The proceeds of the dog tax are applied first to pay for damages done by dogs to domestic animals. The balance is available by law for the support of schools. The literary fund and the dog tax each amount to about $40,000 per year, for the whole state.

A district may receive revenue from one or more of the following five sources:

(4) Additional local taxation.—Every district may raise more than the amount required by law. The average raised in this way throughout the state is about one-half as much as that required by law.

(5) Equalization fund.—$18,750 is annually distributed among the poorer districts of the state in direct ratio to the number of children in average attendance, and in inverse ratio to the equalized valuation per pupil.

(6) High school tuition.—Districts not maintaining high schools receive a rebate from the state for tuition paid by them, in approved high schools or academies, provided their school tax is $3.50 or more on one thousand dollars and their general tax is $16.50 or more on one thousand. The rebate increases as the rate of general tax increases.

(7) Superintendent's salary.—Districts uniting with others to form supervisory unions receive as a rebate one-half of the salary of the superintendent.

(8) Local funds.—Local endowment funds have been given to some districts, the income of which is available for school purposes.

Westmoreland is not eligible under the law to receive anything from the equalization fund or any rebate for high school tuition. Last year no revenue came from additional local taxation. But the bills for books and supplies are paid by the town so that the result is the same as though some additional money had been voted.

It seems to me that it is desirable for appropriations to be made for distinct objects, based upon careful estimates of the school board.

An amount equal to the average for the state would appear something like the following:

Required by law (1908),	$1,357 50
Additional (average of state),	680 00
Books and supplies,	135 00

The school board would then know the amount of money available for their use and could plan accordingly. With such an appropriation and with the money from other sources fixed by law the school year could be lengthened and better salaries paid to the deserving teachers who could be kept longer, and needed improvements made. It is not my wish to present this matter as in any way dictating how much the town shall appropriate. I do appeal, however, for a clear expression of your wishes that we may know how much there will be for school purposes. Then we can plan for the wisest apportionment of the year's funds. I would make every dollar yield a full dollar's worth of service in all purchases. But I am in favor of paying more for teachers' salaries, and of securing trained teachers as fast as possible. It is the teacher that makes the school and it is not simply poor economy to get a poor teacher because she can be hired for a dollar or two less per week than a skilled or well-trained teacher. It is a shameful waste of money. It may even be criminal. A poor teacher is expensive at any price, no matter how small.

ECONOMY.

In this connection I wish to give an extract from the last report of the state superintendent of public instruction.

"In any study of the economy of school administration one of the most important considerations, if not indeed the basal consideration of all, is the principle that teachers' salaries and, to a less extent, suitable apparatus should absorb as much as possible of the total expenditure and all other matters, as little as possible. It is difficult to fix a hard and fast proportion which teachers' salaries ought to bear to total expenditures. Generally speaking, it may be said that the experience of the country seems to indicate that where teachers' salaries, except under unusual and special conditions, fall below seventy per cent of the total expenditure, it is time to see if something is not wrong. Every dollar saved on coal, wood, paper, pencils, etc., and placed to the credit of teachers' salaries is a point gained in the interest of truly economical administration."

Our proportion for teachers' salaries falls much below the ideal seventy per cent. It was only fifty per cent in 1906. The average for the state was sixty-six per cent for the same year. I believe that the line for a forward movement in our schools is the securing of trained teachers, and retaining them for several years in the same schools.

PARENTS' DAY.

Much good comes from the visiting of schools by parents. I suppose it is understood that parents are always welcome in the schools. But I would like next term to have some "visiting days" when parents may be specially invited to come in and see the work of the school. This will enable teachers, parents, pupils and superintendent to become better acquainted, will increase the importance of the school in the eyes of the pupils, and enable it to become a greater influence in moulding and inspiring the lives of our young people.

TEACHERS.

Much valuable and efficient work has been done during the year by our teachers, and there has been a good degree of interest and progress on the part of the pupils. With thanks for the earnestness of teachers and for the sympathy and helpfulness of the school board, and for the enthusiasm of the school children, all of which have helped to make my work pleasant, this report is respectfully submitted.

ALFRED B. MORRILL.
